— and puts it back together after it passes through his system!

"LOOK OUT, STOMACH, here it comes," says Stan Muller as he chumps down on a piece of camera. He says it took months to prepare for his bizarre stunt, and NEWS readers are warned not to try this!

Stan Muller swallowed a camera piece by piece and put it back together after it passed through his system!

"It was a messy job but I was determined to do it," said the 37-year-old man from Richmond, Va.

"I've been swallowing things like bicycle parts, broken bottles and light bulbs since I was a teenager just for the fun of it.

"But this was the first time I challenged myself to swallow something and put it back together again."

Muller decided to swallow the camera after he saw a piece of one in pieces featured in a book on photography. He prepared for the feat by taking a six-month course in camera repair so he'd know how to take it apart and reassemble it when the job was done.

"Most of the parts that make up a camera are very small so I was able to shovel a lot of it down with a spoon," said Muller.

"The hardest parts to get down were the pieces of the camera's body. They're a little over two inches wide, so I trained for the job by swallowing new patients whole to stretch my throat.

"It still wasn't easy. But with a little work, I finally got them down."

Muller began to pass camera parts 12 hours after he swallowed them but electronics and some of the smaller plastic and metal pieces were damaged by Muller's gastric juices but amazingly, most remained intact.

He cleaned each of the pieces with soapy water and rubbing alcohol and spent the better part of six days reassembling the camera.

"It won't take a picture because of the damage to the smaller parts and electronics but it's all in one piece," said Muller.

"I guess it seems kind of wacky to some people, but I saw the challenge.

"It's just one of those things you think about and say, 'What the hell? I'll do it!' "

GHOST SHIP CRUISES BY SHOCKED TOURISTS!

By ROBERT SHAND
Herald correspondent

Scores of awestruck tourists at separate sites more than 75 miles apart have reported sighting the Flying Dutchman — the legendary ghost ship doomed to sail the high seas for eternity!

Two separate sightings reported!

The majestic phantom ship, immortalised in Wagner's opera, Der Fliegende Hollander (The Flying Dutchman), was seen for six minutes as it sailed out from the South African coastal haze into Lambert's Bay.

Further south the following day, it was again sighted — this time for only three minutes — by dozens of tourists aboard an excursion boat cruising on Table Bay, off Cape Town.

It is the first time the Flying Dutchman has been seen since September 1952, when four people sitting on a hotel balcony in Cape Town watched as the ghostly East Indies tradesman drifted across Table Bay.

But of greater significance, it is the first time the Flying Dutchman has been sighted in separate areas on successive days. And one of the people who saw her is retired German ganique sculptor Franz Stelzer.

"There is no doubt whatsoever that the sailing ship I saw out there on Lambert's Bay was the Flying Dutchman," Stelzer declared. "The ship built for the East Indian trading companies by the Dutch and the British.

"She was a very dramatic sight to behold. All sails were full, but she was doing only about five knots, much less than I would expect.

"She was right out there on the bay, in full view. There must have been a hundred people who saw her. Then she just slowly began to fade away like a cloud. She didn't sail out of sight — she just vanished."

The following day, the crew and 95 passengers aboard the excursion boat Kanjandi saw the Flying Dutchman sail by. three minutes before it faded from sight, like the morning

Boat's captain took on God — and LOST!

The legend of the Flying Dutchman has been known to generations of sailors around the world.

Records show that in 1680 a trade ship the Flying Dutchman, captained by Hendrik Vanderdecken, sailed from Amsterdam for the Dutch East Indies.

Though of unsavory reputation, Vanderdecken was a skilled seaman.

But as the Flying Dutchman neared South Africa's Cape of Good Hope, a thunderous tropical storm ripped her sails to shreds and shattered her rudder. As days stretched into weeks, the Dutchman was fixed about off the cape, unable to make headway. Vanderdecken terrific increasingly furious as every trick of navigation and seamanship he knew failed to bring his ship around the cape. In an outburst of rage, he hurled a blasphemy at the Almighty:

"My destined course and vessels never!

The power of God I thus defy to stay

Nor shall the Period of Hell arrest my date

Though I should cruise until the Judgment day."

The Lord's retribution came swiftly. An angel was sent to command Vanderdecken that he should roam the seas forever "until the tryings of God shall rend the sky."

And to this day, Vanderdecken and his crew of dead men keep their silent, lonely vigil on the mist-shrouded decks of their ghost ship.

Scientists insist the sightings are mirages or the images of other ships far at sea created by freak light refractions. But one who saw the ghost ship strongly disagrees.

"That's all hogwash," says Franz Stelzer. "I know what I saw."

Jealous wife shot to death after she breaks into the wrong bedroom!

Texas woman was trying to catch her cheatin' hubby, say cops

By SUSAN JIMISON
Staff writer

Suspicious Priscilla Brayboy thought she'd tracked her hubby to the love nest he shared with another woman, but she broke into the wrong house, cops say — and the terrified occupant shot her to death.

It turned out Priscilla's husband Joe was fooling around just two doors away. He ran to the scene, arriving only moments after his wife was fatally wounded.

"Mrs. Brayboy began pounding on the door and a female answered," said Sheriff's Sgt. Bruce Williams of Houston, Tex. "Mrs. Brayboy screamed and hollered and kicked like a mule.

"She forced her way in and knocked the other woman down. A man was inside and when Mrs. Brayboy lunged through the door, the man shot her with a 12-gauge shotgun."

Williams said the man, 30-year-old Richard Hale, was questioned and released after the incident. The bizarre case will be referred to the grand jury.

Priscilla, 32, had been suspicious of her husband's behavior for some time before the incident, police say.

Then one night she convinced a friend to go with her to the street where she believed her husband's girlfriend lived. The pair arrived at about midnight and, spotting a Volvo just like Joe's parked in a driveway, Priscilla marched up to the house and knocked on the door.

A woman answered but was frightened by Priscilla's threats and abuse and tried to shut the door again. As the jealous wife shoved her way in, the woman's companion heard the commotion, grabbed a shotgun and blasted Priscilla, police say.

"Her friend ran out on the street after the shooting and saw another gray Volvo parked two houses away," Sgt. Williams said. "This was why the husband's car. The friend went into that house and found Joe."

The incredible effects of Love Water have brought a deluge of letters from users who have experienced miracle cures. Some examples:

Horror film freak held in murder

SATANIST Kenneth Milner is accused in grisly murder.

Folks in the tiny farm town of Pinkneedle, Tex., will breathe a lot easier if a self-styled Satan worshiper and horror movie freak is sent to prison for the senseless murder of a teenager.

Frightened townspeople now worry there will be other horrifying attacks. They watch their kids closely. They leave nothing to chance.

"There is fear that there are more satanists out there," said mother-of-four Linda Salas. "There are rumors they are looking for a blond-haired, blue-eyed boy to sacrifice."

People have been on edge ever since admitted Satan freak Kenneth Glenn Milner, 19, was charged with the grisly, Friday the 13th murder of Frankie Garcia, 17.

Garcia was forced to kneel in the dirt in an abandoned shack at the edge of town as Milner, an admirer of Jack the Ripper and Charles Manson, shot him in the mouth with a high-powered rifle, cops said.

Milner was admitted shooting Garcia and also confessed he slit the throat of Jimmy Brenan, an ex-girlfriend's stepfather, and shot his former high school principal Kenneth Williams the same night, police said.

"Milner's friends said he spent hours and hours watching horror movies like Friday the 13th, the Texas Chainsaw Massacre and the like," said Sheriff Terry Summers.

"He knew every horror movie by heart," said Milner's next door neighbor Katrina Powell. "He would make masks of characters in the horror movies — grotesque masks — like with blood and an eyeball hanging out."

The sheriff doubts if there are other devil worshipers around the town, and feels that the only persons to be afraid of is behind bars.

Milner dreamed about scorching a plastic explosive to the back of someone's head and cutting it off, said a friend. "He wanted to know what that would look like," said a classmate.

Friends said Milner began acting weird in high school.

Cops talked him out of jumping off a water tower in 1988. A few months later, he suffered minor injuries and was admitted to a psychiatric hospital after driving his car over a cliff.

Defense lawyer Douglas Woodburn said he may try to get Milner's trial held in another county because of all the publicity.

As for the satanism rumors, Woodburn doesn't think that's a guiding influence in Milner's life, "but I just don't know."

District Attorney David McCoy said Milner gave cops a written confession in which he said he wanted to die.

"Mr. Milner has indicated a strong desire to die, and I intend to do all I can to see his wishes are accommodated," McCoy said.

FRANKIE Garcia was forced to kneel and then was shot.

SCENES like this are from the film Friday the 13th thrilled accused killer Kenneth Milner, his friends say.

Robber felt right at home

A stupid bank robber went to his own bank to pull off a heist — and was easily recognized by tellers he had done business with just the day before.

Cops in Riverton, Pa., are looking for the 58-year-old crook, who had to pull his pistol just to convince the teller he wasn't joking.

The man fled on foot and police are now keeping an eye on his home and looking for him in all his usual haunts.

"He's either awful dumb or he needs help," said police Captain Thomas Gilbert. "I suspect he needs help."

Bum makes $600,000 in the stock market!

By MORT KLEIN

Scruffy Bill Cox may wear unwashed rags and live in a junkyard shack, but he's cleaned up in the stock market — by putting together a portfolio of investments worth $600,000!

Bearded Bill started with $1,500 he inherited when his brother died, and in less than 30 months turned it into an incredible fortune.

"I set a goal for myself," he said from the tin shed he calls home in Liverpool, England. "I would play the stock market until I turned 65, and then I would cash in my stocks.

"Every day I put in 65 hours studying the Financial Times and other investment publications.

"Well, I've just celebrated my 65th birthday.

"Now it's time to liquidate my holdings and have some fun. Being a bum is hard work."

Bill said he wasn't always a rag-wearing hermit. He described himself as a dapper dresser 20 years ago after he retired from a tour of duty as a military police officer at a British air force base in Gibraltar.

Showed Bill said he invested mostly in medium-sized firms that appeared to have room for growth. Many were taken over by larger firms and their prices soared.

Bill offers this tip for other investors: "Plow all your profits back into the market. Do not spend your money on clothes, housing or food. Live simply — and you, too can become rich."

JUNGLE CHIMPS CURE SICK HUMANS!

AFRICAN apes are experts at using herbal medicine, says primatologist.

By MICKEY McGUIRE
Correspondent

Men, women and children suffering from ailments that have stumped their human doctors are being treated with herbal medicines in remote jungle clinics run by wild chimpanzees!

Incredibly, while the apes aren't able to cure everyone seeking their help, they have a success rate that any skilled human physician would be proud to achieve.

"I know it sounds like so much hogwash, but it's really quite understandable, if you are familiar with the incredible natural instincts of chimps," declared Dr. Annette Jaffrey, a primatologist who has spent years working in the jungles of Africa.

"Chimpanzees in the wild have an amazing knowledge of herbal medicine and rely on it to treat their own diseases," she explained.

"Not only that, but they often take medically beneficial herbs to prevent illness.

"Now we have discovered that many people have been quietly trekking into the jungle to seek out the chimpanzees to get help for their frantic ailments."

Dr. Jaffrey explained that the chimps have what she called "clinics" in special jungle trees where a wide range of medicinal herbs are known to grow.

"One of these clinics is in the Mahale Mountains area of Tanzania," Dr. Jaffrey explained.

"Villagers who have been turned away by their doctors as hopeless cases — or because they have no money — have learned that they can get help from the chimps by acting out their problems.

"If someone with a painful headache will clutch his head in his hands and contort his face as though in agony, a chimp will see that display, select the proper herb for a headache and give it to the villager.

"The same applies for someone with stomach problems. The person grabs his stomach and doubles over with his face twisted in pain.

"The connection with the chimps what the problem is and he them knows which herb is needed to cure his 'patient.' It's astounding, but in 90 cases out of 100, the herb selected by the

WACKY FITNESS FREAKS WANT SANTA CLAUS BANNED

By LAUREL BOWEN

Featherbrained fitness freaks are trying to shoot our beloved Santa Claus right out of the sky — claiming the cookie-gobbling old coot is a prime candidate for a heart attack!

"St. Nick is a sick, silly old man and we ought to do away with him once and for all," muttered musclebound Peter Cordovan, leader of the scrap-Santa campaign.

"He's fat, he smokes too much and he spends the whole year sitting on his butt at the North Pole, waiting for his one night of glory.

"If anybody is setting himself up for a heart attack, this old bastard is. And that makes him a very bad role model for our kids."

Iron-pumping Peter and his macho-ego wife Myra are cofounders of Serb Santa, a band of about germ-grabbing Scrooges who want to force Kris Kringle to hang up his toy bag forever.

"Santa Claus is a pig and everybody knows it," huffed sophisticated Peter, owner of a dusty gym in Brisbane, Australia. "That's why every kid hates our problem and walk for the old fella to munch on. And what does he do? He walks them down, of course.

"His arteries must be so clogged from all that junk food, it's a wonder he hasn't keeled over already.

"He's setting a terrible example for our children, and we want to stop it."

If the Cordovans and their kooky cohorts get their way, the tubby, twinkly-eyed Santa we know and love could soon be replaced by some weightlifting lug smeared with oil and decked out in bikini briefs.

"It's time we brought Santa Claus into the 20th century," said muscle-loving Myra. "We need someone healthy and attractive for our children to look up to — not some fat chef who smokes like a chimney, refuses to shave and stuffs his face like a pig."

But even the Cordovans two children think their parents' anti-Santa scheme is stupid.

"Who wants a Santa Claus with muscles everywhere?" asked son Sammy, 12. "Then he'd look as silly as Hulk and Thor."

Man blows brains out after bride-to-be jumps from cake

By KEITH CRAMER

Rollie Resch shot himself to death at his own bachelor party after his voluptuous bride-to-be jumped out of a cardboard cake — buck naked!

The 24-year-old man apparently didn't know that Margaret Feller moonlighted as a party girl, and he was crushed when she shamelessly exposed herself to 50 of his friends.

Witnesses said Resch turned beet red and bolted from the banquet room where the party was being held. He then pulled out a .38-caliber revolver from the glove compartment of his car and shot himself once in the head.

"Seeing his fiancee naked in front of all his friends was obviously too much for him to bear," said Swiss Inspector Allan Edelbaugh. "I guess his fiancee and his family means everything to him."

The mind-numbing drama unfolded exactly two weeks after Resch and Miss Feller met on a ski slope in Davos, Switzerland. After a whirlwind romance they decided to marry on Saturday, September 29.

Resch's friends arranged for a bachelor party the night before and hired a stripper through an employment agency not realizing that their pal's fiancee was on the payroll and would take the job.

"We were as surprised as Rollie when Margaret jumped out of the cake," said Helmut Lambecker, Resch's best friend.

Rollie, we wished to rib him and have fun. But we didn't want to humiliate him. He was our pal.

Miss Feller has been unavailable for comment. Rollie's mother says her daughter is devastated by Rollie's death. "It's a tragic situation," she continued. "Margaret loved Rollie. She never would have done anything to hurt her future husband.

ALIENS BROADCAST PROPHECIES FOR EARTH'S FUTURE... EXPERTS PROCLAIM THEM MORE ACCURATE THAN THOSE OF NOSTRADAMUS!

Space Forces hovering above Earth

Anyone who is familiar with the famous French clairvoyant Nostradamus can tell you that he is perhaps the most accurate seer who has ever lived... on Earth that is!

Hundreds of years before Hitler was even born, Nostradamus described his barbaric attempt to take over Europe and even named him. Nostradamus was also very uncanny in his prophetic visions of the conflicts occurring in the Middle East, describing a "madman" who would emerge to be the "Anti-Christ," at the "Beast of Revelations," and who would pit the Arab nations against the rest of the world.

Indeed, with the unrest that is brewing all over the face of our globe today, most of us find ourselves interested in what may happen in other [illegible]

HOPE & SALVATION FROM OUTER SPACE

In the early 1950s, UFOs started to appear in and about Earth skies in great numbers. In particular, there were a number of amazing stories coming out of the California desert involving human-like space beings said to be making face-to-face contact with people of our own planet. There were not scientists or politicians making such claims, but ordinary men and women from all walks of life who became known as "flying saucer contactees." And while the majority of these individuals received a great degree of scorn because of what they professed, much of what they reported regarding these other-worldly visitors has turned out to be quite true. In fact, it was these same UFOnauts or "Space Brothers" who extensively spoke of the "Last Days" and the coming of the "New Age," channeling their messages to those who felt compelled to listen (a handful of open-minded "freaks" or "weirdos" in those days).

Among these UFOnauts appearing in physical form as well as "beaming" down messages of hope and good will, was a space being known as Ashtar, Commander-in-Chief of the Fleet Federation of Planets. A highly evolved spiritual entity, Ashtar claimed to be orbiting Earth above the Equator in a mother ship several miles long and filled with technically advanced equipment from which he and his crew members could monitor our day-to-day activities, sending down small craft to beam our capitols and our large as well as smaller cities.

In particular, Ashtar seemed quite concerned with our war-like activities, our improper use of nuclear energy, bigotry, bronkism, and the general fall and decline of civilization, the warned of mighty Earth Changes and devastating events that would change the course of history as well as alter biology, though he said—if we chose to—we could survive and become greater beings in our own right.

THE NEW WORLD ORDER

For many years that was little reported UFO activity and Ashtar and the Space Brothers seemingly disappeared from the mid-filled heavens.

But—in reality—we were never left alone! For Ashtar's craft were still "up there," though they remained somewhat "silent," for we have repeatedly been told, that it is not their task to interfere with our development as a planet, that we are pretty much "on our own" to choose the right path, both as individuals and as a collective civilization.

Then several years ago Ashtar reappeared. This time utilizing a New York City businessman as his main spokesperson. To date, the Ashtar Command has broadcast some thirty-two new messages of tremendous importance to the entire world. During these spectacular transmissions, Ashtar told of the unification of Europe and the new openness and freedom to be found in the Soviet Union. Ashtar declared: "We watch and wait for your leaders to make the next move. Your planet is like a giant chessboard to us. We have watched (even more so) since the end of your Second World War the build up of your mighty armies and nuclear weapons, which you claim is for your defense, but there is no defense in the case of nuclear attack. All of the countries on your planet would be affected. And such a war would cause a great confusion and utter chaos throughout the planet.

"Many of your leaders have a sick and evil mentality. We ask your indulgence, as we pass over your Middle East and your military bases, for we are monitoring your activities very closely at this time and are ready to take action if it becomes necessary."

Despite a collective global cover-up on the part of world governments, the reality of UFOs and ETs can no longer be denied or hidden. Through their "Legions of Light," the Space Brothers have made startling predictions regarding the following topics which can be found in the just-published NEW WORLD ORDER.

- In a world war there will be NO winners. • Folly of our political systems. • The Top Secret mission of the aliens. • Spiritual development of humankind. • The selection of the "Chosen Ones" to be removed from the planet in the event of global disaster. • The inside of the Earth is inhabited. • The physical changes our planet will undergo in the next decade. • Many of the inhabitants of Earth arrived from space in another incarnation. • Upcoming Earthquakes. • Illustration for tilting our vibrations. • Space beings will demonstrate their powers on a vast scale. • Evil beings have infiltrated the military and government. • No one in space to welcome "downpayment" and Earth's return to paradise. • More assassination attempts. • Telepathic [illegible] from them.

As a special ceremonial to coincide with the release of this thrilling new volume, we are offering for a limited time only a beautiful medallion depicting the symbol of the New World Order—a rainbow with a flying saucer. # BAH HUMBUG!

American heroes' Christmas card was made in Japan!

JUST like all the other Americans who'll have days, this card was made in Japan.

I almost threw up my fruitcake when I read the small print in the bottom corner — PRINTED IN JAPAN.

Folks, when the Japanese are selling Americans Christmas cards with heroic scenes from a war we fought against THEM, it's the last straw! Next thing you know, Little Chief will say "Ah So" instead of "Ho, Ho, Ho" because of having the Jolly Old Elf walk and stalkee on Christmas Eve, our kids will leave him milk and cue for crying out loud.

It wouldn't surprise me one bit to see Sam trade in his sleigh and reindeer for a new Toyota — and turn to Kodoque to finance the deal.

Let's face it. You can't even Christmas shop without buying something that was MADE IN JAPAN.

But what makes me so ed hitting mad is that nobody seems to give a hoot that we don't make ANYTHING in this country anymore.

And those nitwit politicians in Washington sit on their fat behinds scratching their heads about more and more Americans losing out of work.

Where the hell do you suppose them to be if the only jobs left are selling things MADE IN JAPAN, for Pete's sake?

You only need so many folks peddling cars, TVs, computers, telephones, stereos, watches, toys, microwaves, lawnmowers, electric appliances and artificial Christmas trees. Nowadays all the American stuff is MADE IN JAPAN.

I had promised myself I wouldn't buy one Christmas gift that was made in Japan this year. But then nobody would get anything.

THE NOTORIOUS HANGING JUDGE

He often wept but he ordered 172 executions!

By REBECCA SPALDING

On Sept. 3, 1875, six hooded men did their "Dance of Death" on the gallows at Fort Smith, Ark. The mass execution brought a public cry of outrage that only added to the infamy of Isaac Charles Parker — the Hanging Judge!

In pronouncing the death sentences in his so-called Court of the Damned, Judge Parker solemnly declared, "I do not desire to hang you men. It is the law." Then he wept.

Nevertheless, at precisely 9:30 a.m. that September morn, hangman George Maledon adjusted the noose of the specially ordered Kentucky hemp around the six necks. He clambered down the 13 steps and pressed the release trigger.

Six bodies plunged unceremoniously into the eight-foot drop. The six necks snapped. Not one body twitched. George Maledon had done his job well and he was pleased.

From the window of his chambers overlooking the gallows compound, the Hanging Judge surveyed the grisly scene — and the 5,000 eager spectators who had come to witness the firm dispensation of Parker-style justice. Then he turned away and cried like a baby.

In time, the frontier people of the Oklahoma-Arkansas Indian Territory would come to realize that Hanging Judge Parker rather enjoyed wielding

Judge Parker had been named to the federal bench earlier that year by President Ulysses S. Grant. Over the next 21 years, he sentenced 378 people to death. Of those, 88 did what was then affectionately referred to as the "Dance of Death."

His "eye-for-an-eye" views of justice spelled doom for anyone convicted of murder.

While hanging was not the only possible sentence, it was the one he insisted on.

When one convicted killer whimpered for mercy, Judge Parker's reply seethed with contempt.

"When you return to the solitude of your prison," he said, "bring to your recollection the mortal struggles and dying groans of your murdered victim."

As the years passed, the "hang 'em high" justice began to backfire. The U.S. Supreme Court began reviewing appeals from his court and more and more convictions were being overturned.

His last open hanging was carried out on July 1, 1896. It dispatched the Buffalo Hunt gang of five semi-literate, half-black, half-breed Creek Indians who waged a wild rampage of rape and murder that lasted a 13 frightening days

NOSE Parker ordered the hangings of the Buffalo Hunt gang of murderers, right.

After the executions, a portion of Buffalo Hunt's posthumous was found in his cell. On the back of it he had written a poem titled My Dreams. It is said that as reading the poem, Judge Parker bowed his head and wept.

But there were no tears shed a few weeks later when Hanging Judge Parker came to the end of his own rope.

A diabetic and bedridden with rheumatism, he died at the age of 57 — and went to stand judgement before a court of justice much higher than that of mortal men.

SPACE ALIENS K
NEW JERSEY MO
3 TIME

By JOE BERGER
Staff writer

Amazing Alice Haggerty knows we're being visited by aliens from another world because the mild-mannered mom was actually abducted by E.T.s — not once, but three times!

CREATURES from outer space miraculously saved Alice Haggerty's diphtheria.

"They're here, lots of them, and they've been here for years," insists the Princeton, N.J., postal worker.

"People may think I'm crazy, but I'm not. I've been on their spaceships. I've listened to them talk, and I know they've come on a very special mission — to keep us from destroying ourselves."

Down-to-earth Alice, 36, was a 7-year-old girl dying of diphtheria when she had her first eerie encounter with an alien from space in 1943.

"I was so sick the doctor told my parents I might not live through the night," she recalled.

Hours after overhearing that dire pronouncement, the scared schoolgirl awoke to find an angelic figure in flowing white robes hovering over her bed. Silently, the visitor scooped her up in his arms and floated out the window.

Later, under hypnosis, Haltbergmind Alice remembered being whisked aboard a spaceship and placed on a gleaming white examination table.

"They put me under some kind of tube or cylinder thing with a light coming out of it, and they told me this was curing me," the mother of two said recently. "Then they took me back to my bed. And sure enough, by the next morning I was completely well. The doctors said it was a miracle."

Six years later, when Alice was 12, the figure in flowing robes appeared once more, kidnapping the terrified teenager from her room and leading her aboard yet another spacecraft.

Once again, she was forced to lie on an examination table surrounded by bizarre creatures barely 3 feet tall, with big eyes and gray, wax-looking skin.

"They were poking me and sticking me with needles and things," Alice recalled. "It was awful."

The spine-chilling ordeal eventually ended and the shell-shocked schoolgirl was returned to her room. But for years afterward, she was plagued by nerve-jangling nightmares of spaceships fighting it out in a horrifying war between the worlds.

"I know they'd given me a vision of something very real lying in our future," said the dumbfounded divorcee.

SON'S DART

By ANNE HUMBEY
Special to The NEWS

Thanks to breast implants, curvy mom Marsha Michaels had a figure to rival a Playboy centerfold's — until she got hit in the chest with a dart and one of her boobs popped like a balloon!

The bizarre accident occurred while the mother of two was playing darts with friends in the family playroom. As she walked in front of the dart board to mark down her score, she got nailed in the left breast with a dart thrown by her 13-year-old son Johnny.

"I'd just hit the bull's-eye and was going to mark it down when I felt a twinge in my left breast," said the pretty blonde.

"When I looked down and saw the dart, I made the mistake of pulling it out."

As her son and horrified friends looked on, the poor woman's implant, filled with a saline solution, deflated right before their eyes.

The hapless housewife said

Stuck-up bachelor weds himself

. . . because he couldn't find a woman good enough!

By LAUREL DOWN

Cocky connoisseur Andre Cousteau was convinced no woman in the world was worthy of being his wife — so the swashbuckling bachelor married himself!

Stuck-up Andre, 30, rsvpd to more 200 hushed wedding guests and solemnly vowed to love, honor and obey himself for as long as he shall live.

"It was a stunning ceremony. It really was," gloated the goofball groom.

"And just having a bride there didn't detract from the festivities one bit. I was so beautiful all by myself that we really didn't need a bride.

"Ask anybody and they'll tell you the same thing."

Arrogant Andre says he decided to get hitched to himself after dating hundreds of dazzling damsels — and finding none of the lovely ladies to his liking.

"The girls have always been crazy about me, and why wouldn't they be?" crowed the blowhard bartender.

"I'm witty, handsome, charming, I drive a Porsche and I'm a great lover. But all of the girls I went out with, I just couldn't find one who measured up to my standards. All I ever wanted was a beautiful blonde with a good sense of humor and a good job and a big chest who would let me be the boss. It didn't seem too much to ask."

ARROGANT ANDRE — He was the groom and the bride.

And early this year, egotistical Andre thought he'd met the perfect woman. "She was a gorgeous redhead with green eyes and she had a beautiful figure and loads of money," said the pretentious playboy from Madrid, Spain. "I really thought I might marry her until she started looking around that there were things wrong with me. One thing I know, there's absolutely nothing wrong with me.

"When she told me I was conceited, I told her I have every right to be conceited. Then I decided I just couldn't live with a woman who didn't think I was perfect. It finally dawned on me. I was the only one in the world who was really good enough for me to marry."

So the ratchet-mouthed romeo rounded up a preacher who'd go along with his weird wishes. And one Saturday night starry-eyed Andre said "I do" — to himself!

Then the horny-toady hubby set off on a romantic honeymoon to Majorca — all alone.

"I really love being married to me," elated Andre said later. "But I do have a problem. Girls keep flocking after me just like they always have.

"Only now I have to tell them she could only stand there in stunned surprise over what had happened.

"I couldn't believe my eyes. As soon as I pushed out the dart, my boob deflated like a dime-store balloon," she said. "It was just awful.

"Now I'm flat as a board on one side just like before the operation. I don't know how a dart could have caused that to happen."

Plastic surgeon Dr. Adam Reiter said that though it's unusual for breast implants to burst, it's not unheard of.

"I know of at least five cases where breast implants have popped or deflated," he said. "Mrs. Mitchell's implants were filled with a saline solution instead of silicone gel, so it could leak out quite easily if the two were pierced.

"Evidently, the dart went into her breast far enough to puncture the saline-filled implant and when she pulled it out, the solution leaked out."

Fortunately, the breast can be easily repaired, said the doctor.

The Birmingham, England, woman isn't sure when she's going to get the breast fixed, but it will be soon.

"I saved for eight years to afford the operation and I'll not go around looking lopsided for long," she said.

As for Johnny, he's now out of Mom's doghouse. "It was an accident but he was scared to death. I really felt sorry for him," said Marsha.

Video rapist gets 10 years behind bars

Freudish Carl Kranta has been sentenced to 10 years in prison — for raping and videotaping 16 young girls while they were unconscious!

"His actions were truly despicable," said prosecutor Bob Finlayson of Winnipeg, Canada. "He would gain the trust of... place to stay and then prey them with alcohol and take advantage of them."

The crime came to light when one of the girls who was staying at Kranta's apartment called police after seeing him sexually assault one of her friends.

While investigating the complaint, authorities discovered... involved in sexual acts with girls ranging in age from 11 to 21.

After tracking down and talking to some of the girls in the videos, police say the 53-year-old former pulp and paper plant worker had been operating his disgusting scheme for about a year and a half.

"He opened up his home to... whom were living on the streets and having to fend for themselves," said Finlayson.

Once there Kranta would give the girls enough alcohol to make them pass out and then molest them while he recorded it on videotape.

Kranta entered a guilty plea to 16 charges of sexual assault and was sentenced to 10 years

After Alcatraz closed its doors, the baddest of the bad came HERE!

U.S. Penitentiary at Marion, Illinois

AMERICA'S TOUGHEST SLAMMER

MARION PRISONERS, rough n tough inmates spend 23 hours each day locked up in their cell — and even get fed through their doors.

When Alcatraz swung shut its steel doors in 1963, a new federal prison in Marion, Ill., greeted its first long-term resident — and took its rightful place as "the toughest slammer in America!"

But even if The Rock was still in full swing, its cons wouldn't hold a candle to the bad old boys at Marion. They are the meanest of the mean, the roughest of the rough. They are indeed the nutty bunch of S.O.Bs. Officials called the U.S. Penitentiary at Marion, Ill., it was designed to confine 300 prisoners, but the latest head count puts the current population at 388.

"We're entirely different than any other prison because of the kind of prisoners we get," a staff official told The NEWS.

What you will find in Marion, though, are rules pretty heavy duties with some very impressive credentials, guys like:

● Christopher Boyce, the spy whose life story is told in the film espionage thriller, The Falcon and the Snowman.

● Seymour Cohen, the savage pervert who slaughtered eight people in a machine gun massacre on a golf course in the Virgin Islands.

● Garrett Trapnell, the gutsy bank robber who tried to elude capture by using both a helicopter and a skyjacked jetliner. He pointed them both at

● Edwin Wilson, the first CIA agent ever convicted of arms shipments to Libya.

● John Walker, the U.S. Naval officer convicted as a spy who passed military secrets to the Soviets.

They are just a few of America's most dangerous, violent, escape-happy or unmanageable criminals now locked behind the steel bars of the nation's toughest, highest maximum security federal prisons.

"We don't have any cheap boys here," prison spokesman Randy Davis says. "About 50 percent of the inmates here have committed murders in prison."

Most prisoners spend 23 hours of each and every day locked in their 6- by 9-foot cages. Even their meals are delivered through openings in the doors.

When they do leave their cells . . . to shower or for what little recreation they get . . . each prisoner must first back up to his cell door and stick his hands out a special opening.

Only after the prisoner's hands have been cuffed behind his back is the cell door opened. The con is then escorted by a guard armed with a loaded tipped stick.

YOUR SCORE

To work out the three categories your score reflects the following:

27-69: Very abnormal. It's clear you're doing something very unhealthy or healthy and chances are you know which side of the equation you're on.

70-88: Somewhat abnormal. Your habits don't coincide with the majority of Americans, for better or worse.

87-88: Adjusted. You fall into the mainstream, but you have just a couple of healthy nonconformists.

89-98: Supernormal. Even though you don't stand out from the crowd, you're certainly running right along with it.

Now add your complete scores for all 27 questions and compare it to the overall summary:

108-162: The Twilight Zone. You scored low in all categories. That could mean your health and dietary habits are vastly superior or inferior. But it could also mean that you are emotionally out of sync with the world.

If it's the latter, try to get some help.

163-186: Different Drummer. You're determined to be a nonconformist. You feel — and probably are — rather isolated from the rest of society.

188-216: The Happy Extremists. You're almost normal, but you're also flexible enough to pick and choose which of society's customs you'll follow.

211-297: Just as John Doe. Wow, are you normal! Most of your answers were 11s, the answers the average person gave.

Miracle man heals 38 dying children — with his eyes!

By SHARON STEELE
Applebet correspondent

A mystery doctor miraculously healed 38 doomed children in the cancer ward of a hospital — in a single day!

And he did it without hospital privileges, drugs or a single medical instrument, stunned officials say.

"He just shows his credentials to gain entry to the hospital, made rounds and vanished," said Dr Maria Dominguez, chief of staff at Olivenza Children's Hospital in Olivenza, Spain.

Staffers were startled when we learned what he had done and worked around the clock for two days interviewing and conducting tests on the children.

"When all was said and done, it was clear this 'doctor' didn't lay a hand on a single child — he merely gazed into their eyes."

Incredibly, 33 of the terminally ill kids showed no trace of cancer two weeks after the mysterious medicine man's visit to the hospital. Various ward officials said it may be months before they can be sure the youngsters are completely cured.

Cured girl: 'He looked at me and said I could go home with Mom'

Little Carlotta de Salegui, 8, was dying of leukemia when the doctor's fee rates — and went.

"He was a very nice man and he made me all right," said Carlotta, who has since been released from the hospital.

"He looked at me and smiled and said I could go home with my mother soon.

"He said I was beautiful, even without my hair, and that I had to brush me."

Dr Julio Carrascal, chief psychiatrist at the hospital, believes the mystery doctor could have used a shocking psychic technique to help the children.

"It's not at all unlike what faith healers around the world do every day," said Dr Carrascal.

"From what we can see, he cured 33 cancer-doomed kids with nothing but his mind."

Authorities have failed in every attempt to find the mystery doctor, leading to speculation by some that he comes from outer space — or beyond.

"No human being could have done what he did," said Rocco de Salegui, Carlotta's mother. "He gave our children back to us when nobody else could."

Court backs FBI's right to spy on 11-year-old

The country's highest court says the FBI doesn't have to disclose certain information in a file opened on Todd Peterman when he was only 11 years old.

Todd was in elementary school in 1968 when he began a project to prepare a personal world encyclopedia. He wrote to 100 countries for information about their people and government. The FBI started a file on the boy, after spy agency envelopes from Laboratory Disposable Products, a business operated by his parents out of their home in North Haledon, N.J.

Peterman, now a student at Rutgers University of New York, recently was turned down when he requested copies of his personal FBI file.

Stupid yuppies make big bucks and live like hoboes!

THIS YUPPIE hobo even dyed his beard white and paid big bucks for those old clothes.

You can't tell the homeless bums from the rich folks since these snotnose yuppies began horning in on America's honest-to-goodness hoboes.

This new breed of American hobo is crisis-creating the country. They've formed a club, hold meetings and everything.

The 4,000 members of the high-brow Hobo Club are part-time wanderers with jobs, credit cards and even automobiles. It's enough to make any red-requesting, train-hopping hobo puke.

Barry "Bridgeburner" Schwartz got the bum's rush when he tried to catch a box from a Los Angeles freight yard to a Hobo Club meeting.

"The bozos wouldn't park up because the cars were too dirty," said Schwartz, who took a $21 taxi ride to the meeting at a Beverly Hills bar.

"Hobos are known as poor but proud. They wouldn't be caught dead in a limousine."

By JACK ALEXANDER

Another very much upset by the "Hobo-Yuppie" Days, 33, "And here we are in Beverly Hills drinking $3 and $4 beers. It's crazy."

America's first hobos were said to have been jobless guys who rode the rails seeking work after the Civil War.

"In the old days it was out of desperation," said Garth Bishop of Los Angeles, publisher of the Hobo Times newsletter. "Most of the young people who do it do it for a weekend adventure."

But railroad bigwigs aren't any more pleased with the yuppie hobos than with the real-life ones.

"Our equipment was not meant for the transport of human beings," said Craig Westphal, a railroad spokesman.

Yuppie hobos set a poor example for children. "I can't tell you how many children get their legs cut off trying to hop moving trains," said Miss Westphal.

Hobo Club members agree there may be some danger, but it isn't enough to stop them.

They laughingly refer to train wheels as "salami slicers."

"It makes perfect sense," said Bob "Santa Fe Bo" Hepburn, one of the part-time hobos. "The wealthiers and the poorest are those who don't work 9-to-5. We're here to make a life, not make a living."

Evil dad kills 9-year-old son with BUG SPRAY!

Floridian dad Ronald Resnik snuffed out the life of his 9-year-old son by poisoning him with insect foggers!

In a botched murder-suicide attempt the Sylmar, Calif., man gave his son Chris dozens of tranquilizers and antibiotics, took the same drugs himself and then set off bug-exterminating foggers in the car they were sitting in.

In letters to his lawyer, a male lover and a lesbian friend, the depressed restaurant owner wrote that he was tired of living and did not want to leave his son alone to the world, authorities said.

"He planned to kill himself and the boy," said Deputy District Attorney Jay Lipman. "He'd even arranged to have both of them cremated. At least we can save together, Resnik was having financial troubles."

Authorities found out about the bizarre murder-suicide attempt after Resnik's lawyer opened a suicide note Resnik had mailed him.

After reading the letter, the lawyer immediately called police, who raced to Resnik's townhouse, where they discovered father and son lying side by side on a bed. Sadly, Chris was already dead but his father was still alive.

Resnik, 38, pleaded no contest to a charge of first-degree murder and faces 25 years to life for the crime. — MARTHA ATKINS

Real-life Tarzan found in jungle

HOLLYWOOD'S king of the jungle may have a rivalry deal in Australia, say authorities.

Is Australia's mystery man missing American student?

By SUSAN HANSON

Australian officials are crediting the jungles for a real-life Tarzan who may be missing American student David Sacks.

The Plymouth Meeting, Pa., college student disappeared in May 1988 while visiting a rugged area famed in Queensland, in northeastern Australia. Last month a bushman spotted a wild-eyed man fitting his description, but was unable to stop him.

"It was a black, cold day," said the bushman, Tim Lund. "I was walking in the forest preparing when I heard him make a weird noise.

"When I said 'Hello, mate' he bolted."

Averaging at least, the jungle man was nude and sported a mop of unruly black hair. He hightailed it through the trees like an ape. Sacks, who was 23 at the time of his disappearance, had wavy brown hair which could have become matted and darkened by life in the wild.

"Some police have gone out there to search for signs of a campfire or shelter," said Sgt. Mark Lucas, one of the police investigators. "They found nothing at all, but the area is a thick jungle."

Sacks was on a year's leave of absence from Brown University in Rhode Island when he traveled to Australia. There he took a werewolf training course and when he disappeared was set to ride [redacted] in Queensland.

When last seen, Sacks was clothed and poisoned. He carried with him a backpack, sleeping bag, tent and two days' provisions. He vanished without a trace.

Get ready for that recession!

Here's how YOU can beat HARD TIMES

Top financial expert's money-saving tips!

By MICHAEL TODD
Special correspondent

A recession could knock a lot of people for a loop, but an expert has some tips that could help you battle the bad times ahead — and come out smelling like a rose.

"The important thing is to plan, don't panic," says consumer expert Dr. Flora Williams. "Keep a tight rein, a sense of control over your life."

Dr. Williams offers these suggestions for weathering the financial storm.

● Learn new ways to have a good time without blowing a lot of money. Have fun with family and friends.

Instead of shopping or eating out, organize an old-fashioned picnic or take a stroll in the park.

● Barter or develop other ways of acquiring needed goods and services without shelling out scarce money. If a neighbor can cut your child's hair, offer to mow the lawn or wash the car in return.

● When financial trouble arises, attack the problem and not the person. Don't blame yourself or others for tough situations that can't be controlled.

Spend your energy finding ways to get out of the hole you're in.

● Be constantly alert for new ways to economize — by organizing a car pool or making meals out of leftovers, for instance.

● Seek ways to add to your income. Taking in a boarder might ease your financial burden without increasing your workload.

● If you feel your job is in jeopardy, get additional training to improve your skills and let the boss know you are striving to improve. Find out exactly what your supervisors expect of you and make plans to satisfy them.

● Be very wary of late consolidation in times of soaring interest rates. It's cheaper to pay part of your bills than to take a high-interest consolidation loan.

DON'T blame yourself for tough money problems. Attack your problem and get a top money expert

White collar migrants are stealing our bosses' jobs!

By BARRY BERNSTEIN

Thousands of U.S. executives could lose their jobs when the first wave of South America's white collar migrants reaches our shores in late December, employment experts warn.

Unlike illiterate and hopeless day laborers, the white collar emigrants are educated and possess the skills and drive to become high level corporate and industrial managers in a matter of months.

And they're sure to be an attractive alternative to the executives and middle managers now about twelve hike profit sharing, bonuses and insurance.

"They could save U.S. businesses billions but the impact on the economy as a whole would be devastating," said Will Johnston, a personnel expert in New York.

"White collar migrants don't buy houses or invest in their local communities because they rarely stay in one place longer than two or three months.

"They go where the jobs are and the workers they replace have to go on unemployment or

Although they haven't yet made their way to the United States, the white collar migrants have been common throughout South America for the past 10 years.

Soaring unemployment rates forced thousands of jobless Latin-American executives to travel from city to city and later country to country in search of work.

They also found it easier to get jobs if they told prospective employers that they didn't care about job security and would gladly work for one week, one

ADOLF Hitler was more fleeting from an angry mob during Rev. Gerber's visit to hell.

By DAVID WOLTER
Special to The Weekly World News

A preacher whose heart stopped on the operating table for 12 minutes said he got a terrifying tour of hell and won a reprieve from death so he could warn mankind!

Doctors in Bern, Switzerland, said the Rev. Hans Gerber, a 48-year-old minister, has given an incredibly detailed account of his journey to hell and the inhabitants he found there.

"Hell is not an inferno, but quite the opposite," Rev. Gerber said. "It is an endless frozen expanse where the damned are relentlessly pursued by their victims through eternity."

The minister told a research team investigating the out-of-body experience that he awoke hovering above the operating table while he watched a team of doctors frantically working to save him after his heart stopped during bypass surgery.

"He watched the scene in the operating room for a moment and then felt himself being drawn into a dark tunnel," said Dr. Dieter Ourmann, a psychologist who is in charge of the case.

"Rev. Gerber found himself standing on the lip of the edge of a frozen lake where he saw Adolf Hitler turning blue from the bitter cold and fleeing from an angry mob," said Dr. Ourmann.

JFK ASSASSIN Lee Harvey Oswald, along with other evil killers, was seen by the preacher

The psychologist said Rev. Gerber witnessed a ghastly scene in which Lee Harvey Oswald was brutally tortured. Rev. Gerber said he saw Joseph Stalin, Billy the Kid, Attila the Hun and Errol Flynn.

"Even though this was frightening, Rev. Gerber reports that he did not feel that he was in danger," said Dr. Ourmann. "It was like he was watching a horror film and he realized that his mission was to return to tell others what he had seen."

Doctors were skeptical of Rev. Gerber's shocking story when he woke up in the recovery room following his heart surgery.

"Members of the surgical team requested that Rev. Gerber be placed under hypnosis by a psychologist because they were concerned with his emotional state," said Dr. Ourmann.

"The more that I and other psychologists worked with Rev. Gerber, the more we became convinced

"He certainly did have an out-of-body experience because he was able to describe activities in the operating room that occurred while he was not only unconscious, but technically dead. I can't prove the Rev. Gerber paid a visit to hell, but I certainly can't rule it out."

Will it look like this?

Scientists' bizarre picture of the future:

We'll all be pale, puny & bald!

Five thousand years from today, people will look downright weird, say anthropologists and other experts on evolution.

The humans who populate the jam-packed planet Earth in 6800 A.D. will be barely half as tall as today's average adult, scrawny and totally bald — including the women.

Everybody's skin will be lighter.

"Some people say evolution ended 1,000 years ago, but that's rubbish," said anatomy professor Dr. Gabriel Lasker. "Changes are going on just as rapidly now as they ever were."

We'll look less robust 50 centuries from now, according to anthropologist Professor C. Loring Brace.

"We'll be smaller. Baldness will be pronounced, in both males and females. We haven't really needed hair for quite a while. Our skull size may shrink a little and body size will reduce.

"We'll start to look like little old men in the future!" said the anthropologist.

People will get paler and paler, Prof. Brace said. "Africans will be whiter, and Caucasians will be even paler."

Theoretical biologist Dr. Thomas Ralton said, "Another difference will be a shorter jaw. That's already starting to happen through the loss of wisdom teeth."

World population — now at about 5.3 billion — will swell to between 9 billion and 18 billion in another 8,000 years, predicted Dr. Ralton.

"With a doubled or tripled world population, we'll be about half as tall as now because food will have to go at least twice as far," he said.

Quadriplegic Ken Bergstedt was terrified he would be left with no one to care for him if his cancer-stricken father died before he did. So, with a judge's permission, his father pulled the plug and Ken died.

When Ken died, his father's reason for living died also. Robert Bergstedt no longer had to care for Ken night and day. He no longer had a reason to endure the terrible pain of the cancer that was eating away at his lungs.

Less than two weeks after he had disconnected his son's life-support breathing tube, the 58-year-old widower was dead.

"He no longer had any reason to live," Las Vegas Police Sgt. Parker McManus told The NEWS. "You know, I've often heard stories about dying people who will themselves to live for some special reason or other.

"And that's just what the guy did. As long as his son was alive and needed him, the father would battle to stay alive. It's amazing what love can do."

Paralyzed from the neck down in a tragic 1968 swimming accident when he was 16, Ken went to court pleading for the right to end his life before his terminally ill father died.

A District Court judge ruled that he did indeed have the right to end his life, but asked him to delay the deed until the Nevada Supreme Court had a chance to rule on the issue.

But Ken didn't wait. On his final day of life, his dad gave him a dose of vecuronal and several tablets of valium, then disconnected his respirator.

"He just wanted to go," the grieving father told reporters after his son's body had been removed from the trailer home the two had shared.

"Every night he had discussed his decision with me, and I had asked him to wait. But he was in so much pain, and he was afraid that I would die before he did. He was terrified that he would be left with no one to care for him."

Ken's request, the Supreme Court hadn't acted on the issue," Sgt. McManus explained.

"The District Court ruling was in effect and what the father did was perfectly legal," said the sergeant.

The father, an engineer who was diagnosed as suffering with terminal lung cancer, had cared for his crippled son alone since his wife died of lung cancer in 1978.

"He kept himself alive as long as his son needed him," Sgt. McManus said. "He really loved the boy. And he proved that with love you can move mountains."

Divorce can be dangerous to your health, study finds

If you're married and want to live to a ripe, old age, don't do anything that could put you in divorce court — because it could also put you in your grave.

A recent study reveals that unmarried middle-aged men and women face twice the risk of dying within 10 years of divorce than do those still living with their spouses.

The heightside study, involving 7,881 people, was conducted by a research team at the University of California at San Francisco.

While no firm conclusion was reached, the study did suggest that divorce is a key factor in putting people at greater risk. It says marriage apparently breeds better living habits.

He's got 30 kids — but he won't pay a cent in child support

Pothellied blowhard Bobby Carter is a skirt-chasing scoundrel who's fathered up to 30 illegitimate children — and boasts that he's never paid a penny in child support!

"Men are put on this earth to reproduce, and I'm always out there doing my part," bragged stubby Bobby, 38. "I've lost count of how many women I've slept with — it's probably 100 — maybe even 150.

"But I'm not going to pay through the nose because some woman's so stupid she gets herself pregnant."

The slobbery priest's outrageous views came to light when he appeared — proud as punch — on a British TV documentary about disappearing dads. The former nightclub bouncer from Birmingham, England, told interviewers he has no idea how many kids he's fathered during a 20-year odyssey of debauchery.

"I could have 30 kids even daring around out there for all I know," said the paternity maven. "I've never stuck around long enough to count them. When a woman comes chasing after me saying she's pregnant, I always head in the opposite direction as fast as I can go. I've never paid a penny in child support in my life — and I've never lost a minute's sleep over it, either."

Boasting Bobby says he has had most of his one-night stands during his many visits to bars in a bid to find love.

"Sometimes when I was working on the docks I would wake up with a girl on my arm and have to ask her 'What's your name, love?'" he chuckled.

"The ladies have always had an eye for me but that doesn't make me responsible for what happens to them after we've had our fun."

The lothario-severed red man managed to get out of supporting his two legitimate kids when his first marriage broke up 10 years ago.

Scientist's shocking prediction:

Sun will burn out in 2 years!

By THOMAS GREENE

Scientists used to say that our sun would provide heat and light for billions of years but new evidence indicates that old Sol is running out of fuel — and will be stone cold within two years!

Looking for love?

It's easy to make someone fall in love with you — just look into their eyes!

That's the word from Clark University professor Julian Laird, who found in a study that people who make eye contact literally begin to fall in love.

"Mutual eyeplay almost did indeed increase feelings of attraction and excitement," the expert from Massachusetts said.

"I don't want to sound like an alarmist but the sad fact is we're dead," said Dr. Armin Rieder the noted astrophysicist, told newsmen in Geneva.

When the sun does burn out everything on our planet will die. Earth will be nothing more than a dark chunk of ice floating in the darkness of space."

Dr. Rieder's theory is based on a complex computer model that calculates the rate at which the sun is consuming fuel and predicts when the last of it will be spent.

In the past such models indicated that the sun would burn for billions of years. But Dr. Rieder's model used several new mathematical formulas and factors that indicate it will burn out in dramatically less time — no later than December 1981.

Not all experts agree with Dr. Rieder. Dr. Franz Klein, the famous astronomer, actually called the expert's prediction "absurd."

Dr. Rieder countered: "The reading by reputable astronomers on those statements and am confident that what I am saying is true.

"If the world is going to end in 1982 — and it is — then all mankind should be warned. Some people might want to spend their last few months doing good deeds while others may want to get right with God."

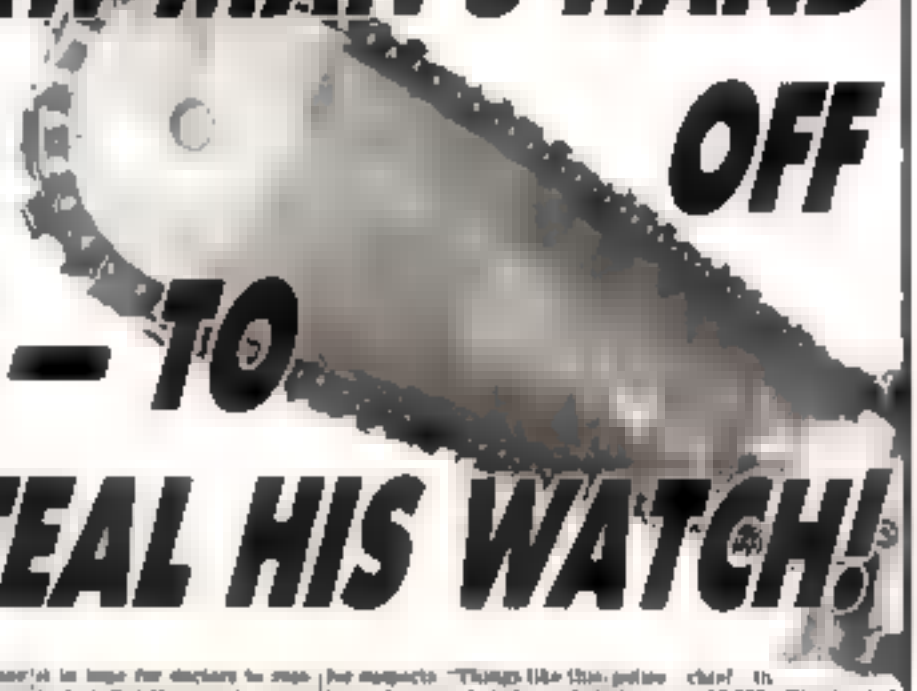
THUGS SAW MAN'S HAND OFF — TO STEAL HIS WATCH!



By JOE SIEVERS
Staff writer

Two bloodthirsty thugs attacked a young man at gunpoint and swiped his expensive wristwatch and rings — by slashing off his hand with a chain saw!

"It was a totally senseless act of violence," said Union Gap, Wash., Police Chief Lane Roberts.

"There really wasn't any reason for them to cut off the guy's hand. They did it for the sheer joy of doing it."

The 20-year-old victim, hospitalized in stable condition, asked that his name not be released.

"He's scared, and who wouldn't be after an experience like that," Chief Roberts said. "Anybody who's bizarre enough to do something like that is bizarre enough to come back and finish the job."

The young laborer's horrifying ordeal began when the robbers — two black men in their 30s — approached him and a friend outside a Union Gap grocery store and offered to sell them a chain saw.

The crooks then drew a gun, forced the man into a car, drove them into a wooded area and ordered them to hand over their valuables.

When the terrified victim fumbled with the latch on his $1,500 watch, the heartless thugs revved up their saw.

One man held him on the ground while the other set to work. But the victim managed to slip his hand above the watch.

Then they sped off into the night, carrying the severed hand — with the watch and two rings still attached.

The victim's friend, who was unharmed, managed to get his mutilated pal to a hospital before he bled to death.

A police team searched the area for the missing hand, hoping they could find the fingers before they had to be surgically reattached.

But the search was unsuccessful.

"Maybe the dogs found it and ate it," said Chief Roberts.

Police suspect the attack was drug-related.

"Things like this rarely happen in Union Gap," said Chief Roberts. "This kind of thing usually happens in Yakima."

Angry customer sets bank machine on fire!

Hotheaded John Young got so burned up when his bank's automatic teller machine wouldn't give him any money that he set it on fire!

The hapless man in Ottawa, Canada, dropped a lit cigarette on the deposit slot of the Toronto Dominion's Grove Machine after it wouldn't take his bank card. The fire caused a whopping $54,000 in damages — destroying $17,000 in cash, $1,200 in customer deposits and did $36,000 in damage to the ATM.

"He got upset when the machine wouldn't give him any money," said Young's lawyer, Robert Meagher. "That of frustration he did what many people would like to do."

The bank discovered Young, 30, had set the fire because each time he put his card in the machine it took an imprint of his account number and the time he inserted it. And a hidden video camera on the ATM secretly taped him smoking a cigarette.

"He was smoking it and looking amused," said Meagher. "Then his hand with the cigarette goes out of camera range. The last time it's on camera, it's near the slot for deposits."

"Since no one else came near the machine for 10 minutes or so after he lost $50 his card in and during that time smoke started pouring out of the machine, they figured he was the one who started it."

Young was arrested and pleaded guilty to one count of willfully setting a fire.

VANISHING ACT

Man disappears — and pops up 14 years later with a whole new life!

By DICK DONOVAN

In 1976, Dennis Rarick left his apartment and vanished off the face of the earth — only to reemerge 14 years later sporting a new name, a college degree, a wife, two sons and a successful business!

When he walked out of his Bethesda, Md., home that day in August, he left his wallet, his private papers and his car.

He also left a cryptic note that posed more questions than it answered. It read: "I'm going on the kind of trip where you never come back."

Finally, 10 years after his disappearance, Keith Rarick filed the necessary papers that declared his son Dennis "presumed dead." His estate was settled and the loved ones he left behind went on with their lives.

But in December 1990, the missing man popped to the surface as Leonard Cohn, a self-employed, 48-year-old mathematician in San Diego, Calif.

Leonard Dennis Rarick — the name Cohn plans to adopt — came back the way he had left 14 years before, without fanfare and with a note, this one delivered by a friend to his parents in Nashville, Ind. But the amazing story of his two lives only just came to light because he returned to Montgomery County in Maryland to clear up some records.

In recent weeks he's been busily explaining to family and friends — and his wife of the past 10 years — how he ended one life and began another.

His wife, Martha Weaver, an opera singer in the San Diego area who uses her maiden name for professional reasons, now knows her husband has a bizarre past, is seven years older than the age on his driver's license and that she has a father-in-law.

"I had told her I didn't have a family and there were no records of me because I was a draft dodger," Cohn aka Rarick said in setting the record straight.

"It was a shock — like someone had died," his dazed wife explained.

Cohn said he found his alias on the tombstone of a child. He said he got the dead youngster's birth certificate and established a new identity.

Why did he "come back from the dead" after so many years?

"It took a number of years to get over my emotional problems ... and quite a few more to gather the strength and tell the world what I had done," he said.

DENNIS Rarick took his new name from a tombstone!

Sicko gave daughters 9 years of incest hell — and made them PREGNANT 10 times!

A man who repeatedly raped three of his daughters for nine straight years, causing 10 pregnancies and as many abortions, will be sent to prison for 30 years.

His 43-year-old wife, who turned her back while her daughters screamed and tried to fight off their father through the years, must serve at least 15 years of a 25-year prison term.

The incredible case of child abuse came to light last March when one of the daughters wrote on a Baltimore, Md., school test, "I hate life. I hate school. I hate people. I hope to die. Soon . . ."

Social workers notified police who questioned the daughters, who are now 17, 20 and 21.

Police declined to identify the parents to protect the identity of the daughters. In a plea bargain arrangement, the father, 43, pleaded guilty to three counts of first-degree rape and three counts of sexual child abuse. He agreed to three consecutive life sentences, according to Assistant State Attorney Wanda Robinson. He must serve the first 30 years.

The girls' mother, who described the family as "very close and very religious," has agreed to a 25-year prison sentence, of which she must serve 15 years. She has admitted three counts of first-degree rape and three of sexual child abuse. Under Maryland law, a person who helps someone else commit a felony can be charged as if he or she committed the crime.

THE LITTLE TWO

LOVING dad Alfred Gugler plays with little David after his first operation. "I know he'll be all right," says dad.

By SUSAN HANSON
Staff writer

Tiny David Gugler came into the world with a strong, healthy body — and two faces!

But now at the age of 6 months, the feisty little boy has taken his first steps on the road to a normal life thanks to a team of skilled surgeons who are reconstructing his features in a series of delicate operations.

"We can't thank the doctors enough for what they've done for our son," said the child's father, Alfred Gugler of Vienna, Austria. "He will has to have more surgery, but at least now he has just one face, not two.

"When I first saw him, the thought kept going through my head, 'My child is disfigured.' I loved him, but I wondered how he would manage to live in our society. Now I know he will be all right.

"The doctors say they will improve on his nose and mouth so that you won't be able to tell there was ever anything wrong with him."

Experts say they don't know exactly what caused David's head to develop two separate faces. But they believe he may have started out as Siamese twins, whose heads and bodies combined during development in his mother's womb.

Whatever the cause, when David was born there was check in the delivery room. The baby had two complete noses, two mouths, two eyes and a button-like growth where a normal nose ought to have been. His eyes were spaced far apart and his head was much wider than normal.

At first, Gugler and his wife, Sandra, feared their baby boy might not survive. But when his doctors pronounced him healthy, they got busy trying to find out how he would be helped.

The couple tracked down a plastic surgeon who had worked on a baby with similar deformities and when David was 5 months old, he was given his first face-saving operation.

"To us, he is beautiful now — even though the surgeons aren't finished with him," Gugler said.

"We know now that he'll have the same chance every other baby has. He is our pride and joy."

FIRST operation improved David's appearance greatly.

By JACK ALEXANDER

"Apparently he hadn't read the Good Book or he would have known Thou Shalt Not Steal," said Ralph Gonzales, a Houston, Tex., cop.

Johnson, 34, stuffed five Bibles worth $64.70 into the front of his pants, but didn't realize he was being watched by an off-duty cop working security for the store.

The officer followed him outside and arrested him, according to District Attorney Becky Haven.

Johnson wanted to give the Bibles — which cost $12.95 each — to his friends as Christmas gifts.

"He said that's how he does his Christmas shopping. He steals," said Johnson's lawyer, Ken Goode. Johnson pleaded guilty to a charge of felonious theft. He was sentenced to two years in prison.

Wife kills hubby, trying to keep him out of jail, cops say

Grief-stricken wife Gloria C. Pfeiffer was trying to keep her husband from going back to prison — but she accidentally killed him instead, cops said.

GLORIA PFEIFFER

Gloria was charged with manslaughter after she was accused of giving her hospitalized hubby an extra dose of heart medicine to prolong his illness and delay his return to prison.

had been sentenced to a year in prison for violating parole after an earlier crime, and Gloria was afraid he would be sent back to prison.

"She was upset because her husband was going to prison for the parole violation, but she said she didn't mean to give him a fatal overdose," said Tucson, Ariz., Police Capt. Richard Wright.

Leonard had been hospitalized with heart problems.

Gloria, 56, said she brought him extra doses of the heart medicine from home, at his request, hoping it would make him too sick to go back to prison, according to police.

But the medicine he received was stronger than what he was given at the hospital and would make him sicker, cops said.

An autopsy revealed Leonard had triple the correct dosage of the heart medicine in his body when he died at the hospital in August.

He had been sentenced to a year in jail in 1986 for violating his parole. He had been sentenced to prison in 1976 for slugging a police officer during a traffic stop.

Leonard was released from prison in 1982 after serving six years of his sentence.

He was arrested for violating his parole in 1985 when he was caught driving a car with a broken taillight.

After he was released from jail in 1986 for his 1985 parole violation while he was appealing the case. But two months ago, a federal judge ordered him to jail.

But before he could be returned to prison, Leonard was hospitalized with the heart problems.

The distraught wife, a city bus driver, was charged with manslaughter instead of murder because there is no evidence that she intended to kill her husband.
